

-----
Title: Discovery of the Tomb

Author: Tavera Sewel
-----

Day Nine - Day Ten:

The excavation of the next set of tunnels has ceased, as three of the workers have gone missing in the night. Bergen voiced the opinion that they had most likely abandoned our group altogether and headed back, as they were of the number that seemed especially disturbed by the Tomb. Lysander had other ideas, however. In the middle of our discussion on the matter, he went into a wild tirade on the possibility that they had somehow infiltrated the tomb's interior without us. The pure, hateful venom in his voice when he spoke of the workers shocked me, as I had always thought him to be a levelheaded man of great learning. As we are still at work digging out the rubble that blocks all access to the inner chambers, I cannot help but believe the workers must have fled the site altogether, as Bergen said.